INTEREST IN BOOKPLATES BECOMES KEEN HERE; EXHIBITION AT LIBRARY

As the result of an exhibition of the bookplates that were shown in the annual contest of the American Bookplate Society, now going on at the Library of Hawaii, and another exhibition of the collections of local people promised for the future, interest in the designing and collecting of bookplates in Honolulu is rapidly rising.

For the remainder of this week the exhibition on the second floor of the library will be open to the public, after which it will be returned to the American Bookplate Society from whence it came. Miss Helen E. Stearns and Miss Elizabeth M. Richards of the library staff, will then develop another exhibition of the collections of local bookplate enthusiasts with their collections as the nucleus of the exhibit.

H. Nelson Poole of Honolulu is showing an attractive group of bookplates in the exhibit at the library. That were designed for the people of Honolulu. In his collection are designs made for Charles M. Cooke, Caroline A. Cooke, Alonzo Gartley, Ebert J. Botts, David Thrum, Marie K. Spaulding, John Baird, Elizabeth M. Richards and Helen E. Stearns.

Among the most attractive of these designs is the plate for Caroline Cooke, which shows a little girl reading a book while lying on the floor. The design on which the name of Charles M. Cooke appears shows a small boy with a fish pole and in old clothes going fishing. The design for Alonzo Gartley shows a sailing vessel at sea.

Leading bookplate designers of the nation are represented in the work that is on exhibition. They were formerly at the Avery Library in Columbia university where 200 bookplates that had been designed in 1916 were shown. They include examples of almost every known process—etchings, engravings, wood cuts, colored wood blocks and zinc etchings. About 50 artists were presented in the original exhibit.

In the awarding of prizes the work was divided into three classes, personal, institutional and portrait bookplates. In the first class Ralph M. Pearson of the Chicago Society of Bookplate Designers for the Woolworth building, showing in an arch of the Brooklyn bridge, Dugald Stewart Walker, known for his fantastic and idealistic style of book illustrations, received honorable mention. W. F. Hobson, one of the best engravers, received first prize in the second class for a plate designed for the Lucy Locke Memorial Library at Webster, Massachusetts. The third class was led by Carl S. Junge, a western designer, who won first prize for an engraving on wood reproducing a portrait of Shakespeare. The design was made for Miss Sally Hovey.

Uncle Sam's Thrift Thought For Today

"Do you throw away 'ham gravy' or bacon fat, Madam Housewife, because it is too greasy for ordinary use?" Here is a way suggested by the U. S. department of agriculture to make it blend into soups or gravies instead of floating as a greasy layer on top.

Stir into each two tablespoons of melted grease one-half tablespoon of flour. The mixture will blend easily into milk soups, stock soups, sauces or gravies and give an appetizing flavor.

HINDU PRISONER, ILL, IS RELEASED

Surendra Nakh Kar, Hindu student at the University of California, who is charged with participation in the alleged conspiracy to overthrow British rule in India, obtained temporary release from custody that he might go to a sanitarium in Colfax for treatment for tuberculosis, says the San Francisco Bulletin of July 17.

Over the objection of the government the bail for Kar was reduced from $5000 to $2500 by Federal Judge Rudkin, and several fellow students gathered the necessary money for the bonds. Kar collapsed while returning to a local hospital from court.

HOLD PUBLIC HEARING ON LAIMI IMPROVEMENT

Because the bid of John Duggan was $2027 higher than the city engineer's estimate for the paying of the Laimi, Park and Puwa improvement district, a public hearing will have to be held in order that the residents may say whether they will pay the extra cost. Duggan's bid, the lowest of the two tenders entered, was $15,777 and the engineer's estimate was $13,750. Unless the property owners are willing to put up the extra money the improvement district will fall through. The engineer's estimate was made some time ago and the higher bid is said to be due to the increased cost of labor and material.

BEAUTY CHATS

By EDNA KENT FORBES

The Well-Groomed Maid

"THE FRENCH WOMEN are not beautiful in reality," said the man just back from Paris, "but they're so awfully well groomed you think they're simply stunning. Even now, when they are either comparatively poor, or purposely doing without to send their 'pollus' little luxuries, they look superb. I know one woman who told me she hadn't bought even a shirtwaist since the war started, whose clothes by all present standards should be horribly out of date, and my wife agreed with me that she looked the very essence of fashion and beauty."

"And I'll tell you why," he went on, warming up to his subject, "it's just because that woman dressed herself so carefully. I never saw a spot or wrinkle on her suits, her hats looked as though she had posed them on her head as a painter poses a model for artistic effect, her veil was perfectly adjusted, she carried herself like a queen. Her skin was fresh and pretty, and her hair never had a wisp out of place. That's why we think the French women so pretty, because they're so well groomed."

Which is wisdom that many a woman should take to heart. Because you can only afford a cheap suit is no reason why you should wear it carelessly; because you can only buy one or two hats a season is no reason why you must neglect all your appearance, and go forth looking as though you were put together in a hurry.

Combining your hair costs you nothing, so take time to see that it is carefully and becomingly arranged. Powder your skin lightly, if that improves your appearance. Pure powder does no harm. Be sure your lingerie fits well, otherwise your outer clothes will not look neat. Adjust your waist carefully, and be certain your skirt hangs evenly all around.

FUNSTON POST HAS THREE NEW MEMBERS

Three new members were initiated Tuesday night by Frederick Funston Post, Veteran of Foreign Wars, as follows:

Capt. William Hampton, veteran of Philippine campaign from 1899 to 1903; Richard Cheatham, veteran of Porto Rico and Philippine campaign; Robert B. Sabin, veteran of Chinese Boxer trouble and the Philippine campaign. Sabin was a member of Riley's famous battery in the Boxer fight.

C. J. Edwards of the local post has been invited to attend a national convention in New York, August 27, 28, 29 and 30, but will be unable to do so.

Questions and Answers
Kindly tell me what will clear the eyes and also make the lashes long and thick.
Country Maiden.

She is extremely well groomed—a trait that often gives her the name of beautiful.

Reply—Hot compresses on the lids will soothe and clear the eyes; also bathing the eyes themselves in warm water. The lashes may be improved by rubbing vaseline into the roots several times a week, and brushing them daily.

To D. J.—The proctoid could not have caused hair to grow on the face. The trouble likely came through some of the other lotions you used while curing the eczema. I shall be pleased to send fuller directions if you send an addressed, stamped letter. Electric treatment would probably be your best choice.

FERN SPENDS ONLY $15 FOR ENTERTAINMENT

Mayor J. J. Fern during his campaign for election took the stand that Mayor Lane spent too much for entertainments and on his automobile and promised to be very economical if elected.

During the first month of his term at least, he has kept his word for the upkeep of the automobile has been to date only $11.8, and out of his entertainment fund he has used only $15.77.

CONSTITUTIONALISTS OF JAPAN BADLY BEATEN IN LAST ELECTION

TOKIO.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—The Constitutionalists suffered a crushing defeat in the recent election. Revised returns for the new house of representatives show that the government forces possess a majority of 45 over the opposition groups. The figures stand as follows:

Pro-government: Seiyukai or Political Friends party, 164; Teruchi Independents, 49; total, 213.

Anti-government: Kenseikai or Constitutionalists, 120; Kokuminto, 36; Independents, 12; total, 168.

Representative Japanese, quite apart from their political affiliations, are greatly surprised that the Constitutional issue involved in the elections had so little influence on the result. Last year the Constitutional party had more than a majority in the house of representatives, which was 351 members, but now its membership has been reduced to 120, a loss of 78 seats as compared with the house which was dissolved by Premier Teruchi last January. Constitutional leaders like Yukio Ozaki, ex-minister of justice, have been campaigning in behalf of a development of democracy which would, at least, be attended by a system of government based upon parties.

It is true that Count Teruchi replied by allying himself, temporarily at least, with the Seiyukai or Political Friends party, thus tacitly acknowledging the force of the claim for a form of party government. Nevertheless, the result shows that the Constitutionalists met a crushing defeat.

The most representative explanation of the result is that the Japanese voters only vaguely understand, and pay little attention as yet to, abstract principles and that, reflecting Japanese psychology, they lay more stress upon immediate interests. By supporting the Seiyukai party the voters expressed their confidence in the present ministry which, notwithstanding its bureaucratic organization, has not only committed no serious blunders but has, under the leadership of Count Teruchi, adopted a policy of prudent and constructive statesmanship. In other words, the empire has voiced confidence in Teruchi in the present world crisis and has postponed action on abstract questions of government.

The most influential newspapers of Japan voice their regret that the election indicates the absence of any political awakening. They predict that Japan will have a very slow constitutional development. The opposition press points out that the alliance between Premier Teruchi and the Seiyukai party is merely one of mutual interest, that they really have nothing in common and that the day will come when a ministerial crisis will be forced upon the country by the Seiyukai efforts to dominate the political situation.

Circles friendly to the premier declare that the government will successfully face the coming special session of the Diet in June as well as the regular winter session and predict that if any clash arises it will probably not come before next year.

TO LIGHT KALAKAUA AVENUE FROM J. ENA ROAD TO THE PARK

Kalakaua avenue is to be brilliantly lighted on the way to Kapiolani park within a short time, according to Charles Arnold at the meeting of the board of supervisors Tuesday night.

He called this fact to the attention of the finance committee as the system, when installed, will cost $10,000, and he asked the committee to find ways and means of raising the money. The avenue is already well lighted from King street to John Ena road, and it is from the latter point to the park that the new system is to be installed.

MISS HELEN L. HOAG WEDS MAURICE GREENLY

Miss Helen L. Hoag, for two years a teacher in the government school at Waiman, Kauai, was married to Maurice Greenly, instructor in biology at the McKinley high school, last night in the First Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. Leon L. Looibourrow, pastor of the church, officiated, and Miss Ruth E. Hoag and Roy E. Black shear were witnesses. The honeymoon is being spent at Pupukea, following which the couple will make their home in Royal Grove, Waikiki.

Vienna correspondents of German newspapers report that the acceptance of the Czech motion concerning the employment of non-German languages in the reichsrath has caused great excitement among the German parties.
